Florentina MANEA

Climate Change and Sustainable Development Directorate
Ministry of Environment and Forestry

Future expectations regarding JI role

- Scope of the JI mechanism must be extended to allow the approval of domestic and sectoral projects
- JI mechanism has to be prepared for new participants, especially for host countries, considering the possibility of using JI in other states with mandatory commitments
- Defining the role of JI at international level between CDM and IET, and possible new mechanisms
- Clarifying the existence of both Tracks in post-2012

Expectations from JISC

- Enhance the number of promoted and approved projects under the JI mechanism
- Increase the number of AIEs for shortening the delays in the process and for promoting more projects and transfers of ERUs
- Clarify the information requirements and flexibility between Track I and Track II
- Strengthen the relation between project developers, AIEs and DFPs through public awareness, workshops and other related activities

Expectations from JISC

- Organize JI promotion activities (including in host countries) together with other interested stakeholders and other interested agencies
- Promote better communication channels with the DFPs of host countries in order to promote JI at the national level and to reach a wide range of possible project developers
- Together with the secretariat find ways to improve the content of the JI related website

Future Needs

- Promote the JI mechanism for the period post-2012 in the international negotiation context
- Prepare an outreach strategy for the period 2010-2012 focused on enhancing the level of awareness and understanding about the JI mechanism
- The strategy should address all key stakeholders and actors operating in the market (project developers, accredited entities, designated focal points, etc.)

Future Needs

- Depending on resources available and together with the secretariat prepare and distribute leaflets and information materials related to JI projects
- Improve and enhance the communication with media, especially the carbon related portals like PointCarbon
- Continue to participate actively in carbon market events like CarbonExpo

Thank you !!!!
